But what happens when 'the suspect' has no lawyer? FORT MADISON, Wis. — A Wisconsin sheriff says a man confessed to murder because he was homeless and had no lawyer. Wisconsin State Journal reports that Walworth County Sheriff's deputy Jeffrey Anderson made the comments during a news conference Friday. Anderson says Jeffrey Alexander called police to say he had committed the murder of an elderly woman near his home. Anderson says Alexander confessed and then told officers where to find the body, which was in a plastic bag. The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reports that authorities found the woman's body buried in a shallow grave on a rural property. Anderson says the arrest was "the only time in this country" that a suspect has been brought to justice without a lawyer. The court-appointed attorney for Alexander told the Journal Sentinel he is representing Alexander "as a matter of course." This invention relates to an operating mechanism for a multi-position selector valve which can be selectively actuated to provide rapid control of heating and cooling, and particularly to an operating mechanism which is capable of providing both manual and automatic actuation. Selector valves having a plurality of fixed positions in which the valve can be manually shifted between positions are well known in the art. Normally, the selector valves of this type are controlled by an electric motor which may be of the type described in U.S. Pat. No. 4,391,172, issued June 5, 1983.
